

Peter Vinden : Mediator CV

Summary :

I qualified as a Chartered Quantity Surveyor in 1986 and since then have been involved in dispute resolution in one form or other. For the last 10 years I have been working in a full time capacity as an Arbitrator, Adjudicator, Expert and Mediator.

I have been mediating for over 15 years. I formally qualified with CEDR in 1999, trained with MATA in Rome, at Harvard Law School in the US and with IDRS/Globis in London. I sit on various mediation panels and I am registered with the International Mediation Institute.

I have mediated every type of commercial dispute from heavy engineering, insolvency, professional negligence claims, property and construction disputes, boundary and land ownership, partnership disputes to employment and work place disputes and everything else in between.

Experience and Style :

I have successfully mediated over 150 cases in the last ten years including many complex multi-party multi issue disputes that have been incorrectly described as impossible to mediate.

My mediation style has been invariably described as robust, realistic and committed to getting a result. I will encourage, guide and assist all parties at every step and I will adopt an evaluative where a facilitative approach to the mediation is likely to result in a failure to settle

I have had some training in hostage negotiation and I am married with two teenage daughters who provide me with a constant flow of opportunities to deal with high pressure disputes in which extreme conversations and negotiations are the norm.

Employment Background :

I am currently Managing Director of The Vinden Partnership, a multi- disciplinary consultancy offering procurement, project management and dispute resolution services to industry. I am currently engaged fully as an Adjudicator, Arbitrator, Mediator and Expert.
